MRS. G. W. ROSENQUEST JAILED

FOUND BY HUSBAND IN HOME OF CORESPONDENT.

The Corespondent, Nichaus, Also Arrested Her Children and Her Sister Were With Her and She Says Her Husband's Accusations Are Faise His Salary.

HACKENSACK, Aug. 7. Gilbert W. Rosen quest, son of J. Wesley Rosenquest, for many years manager of the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, who a short time ago caused divorce papers to be served on his wife, Jessie Rosenquest, at New Dorp, Staten Island, received a phone message last midnight at his home in New York from Ridgefield Park that startled him. The message was from a woman detective. Mrs. Mitchell. and was something like this:

"Your wife is at the home of the corespondent, August Niehaus, in Ridgefield Park. She was brought here in ar auto by Niehaus from Staten Island. The house is in darkness. Catch the Susquehanna and Western train in Pennsylvania depot that leaves at 12:30, due at Ridgefield Park at 1 o'clock. I will meet you."

Mr. Rosenquest hurried to Ridge field Park. The woman detective took him to the home of Justice Cecil P Beach, where a warrant for the arrest of Niehaus and Mrs. Rosenquest was issued on a charge of adultery, and then Policemen Melia and Vonderhavden started for the Niehaus home on Hackensack road, with Rosenquest, the woman slenth and Justice Peach following closely It was probably 2.15 o'clock this morn-

"Mrs. Rosenquest is not in this house Niehaus declared. Well then it is up to us to search this house to do our duty." said Melia. and he pushed past Niehaus, closely followed by Justice Beach and the other policeman. They found two women and three chil dren in one of the bedrooms, in which was only a single bed.

'Are you Mrs. Rosenquest?" Chief Melia asked of the woman who answered the description given him. "No: she is Mrs. Jessie Rose," spoke up Mrs. Nash, Mrs. Rosenquest's sister, who stood near by, "and I am Mrs. Nash." "Weil, I guess I'll have to call Mr Rosenquest up stairs to make the necessary identification," said Melia. Mrs. Rosenquest at once admitted be vey was a recruit in good standing in the United States army. He had been in the service about a week, most of which he had spent at Fort Slocum, near New Rochelle. But by yesterday morning he thought he'd had enough of army life port and Narragansett Pter and he decided to swim for it.

He took out over the neck of Long Island Sound that separates Fort Slocum from Glen Island just as daylight was beginning to show up the Sound. Things were quiet on Glen Island when he came puffing to land and he had plenty of time to dry off before anybody noticed him. And then he was taken for a visitor, with all the right in the world to be there. By afternoon he had had enough of Glen Island and he thought it was safer too to make a break for somewhere further from the recruiting depot. He took the ferry to New Rochelle.

It was there that Sergt, Vercherau of Fort Slocum found him. Harvey tried to bluff it out that he wasn't Harvey, but there wasn't any use. Vercherau knew him and told him that he was under arrest. That went protty hard with Harvey, for he hadn't thought to be classed as a deserter. It seemed only like jumping a job, and he'd never got into trouble for doing that before.

So when the General Barry got steam ip for the return trip to Fort Slocum Harvey's spirits were so low that he was willing to take a chance at anything. He and the sergeant were on the forward deck of the boat looking away from shore. Vercherau hadn't put handouffs on his prisoner, being on a Government boat with others around to help in case the man made a break.

Harvey vaulted the rail and struck the water flat. When he came up there wasn't much breath left in him and he went down again. Two boys who were rowing near by didn't appear to be much concerned and paddled away from Harvey. As for Harvey himself, he didn't sem to want to make a fuse about getting saved. He flopped idly in the water and it looked as though he would surely

Miss Anna Moran, who is staying at the house of Bruce McRae, the actor, at 187 Woodland avenue, New Rochelle, was in a rowboat starting for Glen Island for a swith. His teeth caught in the sleeve of her bathing suit and ripped it. She shook him free and then he bit her again. Nevertheless she stuck to him and wouldn't let him go under.

IVINS'S SON IN CRUSADE

dence Rescued.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 7 -- Five reformers, one of whom was James S. Y. Ivins, son of William M. Ivins of Nev York, burst into the Narragansett Chihere at 12 15 this morning and were conducting a highly successful raid among roulette wheels, a faro bank and startled men and women in evening clothes wher the police interfered. The leader of the raiders, Constable John G. Cross, and one of his party, George L. Cutting of Worcester, were arrested in the confusion colored waiters of the club carried some of the evidence of gambling out of sight. The rest was hurried away in automobiles The action of Chief of Police James D. 'aswell was in opposition to an order given by Assistant Attorney-General Harry P. Cross, who directed the Chief to go to the assistance of Constable Cross and the raiding party. Constable Cross remained on guard over gambling instruments in the club rooms from 12:15 o'clock this morning until nearly 1 m. despite efforts to oust him that gambling machines might be taken away. Finally Chief Caswell got a warrant for Cross's arrest on a charge of assault and arrested him. As the wo left the building the gamblers began to remove the evidence of gambling and within fifteen minutes the rooms were as bare as a dance hall floor.

With Constable Cross, Ivins and Cal ting were Constables Tenant and Samuel Brown These five men met at Wakofield about 11 o'clock last night and went in an atuomobile to Narragansett Pie-They got out of the machine in front of the Casino, nearly across the street from the clubrooms, and waited until 12:07 clock before making the raid

Constable Tenant and Mr. Ivins wer through the outside door of the building first and overpowered the guard at the entrance. The three other raiders went on up stairs. They broke down a small door and found themselves in a fover where twenty waiters were hustling about.

For a second the presence of the raider alsoard the Nancy, but Harvey fought bullet from a pistol in the hands of Louis was not noticed. Three routette wheels were in operation, a fare layout was being used and around a hazard board were the gambling going on and then Constable Cross announced himself. Immediately some of the women fainted and others became hysterical. There was > recognized several women Constable Cross announced that be would take the names of all present and allow them to depart. The club folks filed out, giving names mostly fictitious. In some cases Mr Cross or Mr. Ivins knew the real names.

After all had filed out except the waiters onstable Cross, armed with a revolver, took possession with his men For about an hour nothing developed, but a little after 1 o'clock Chief of Police Caswell entered the room. Presently Dr. W. E. Arnold, vice-president of the club, and T. J. McKenna, president, came in Dr Arnold said he would have the whole raiding party arrested.

Chief Caswell asked the constable if he had a warrant to raid the place and Constable Cross said that he had not Then Constable John J. Cullen, acting inder orders, made an attempt to arrest jumped between Cross and Cullen and struck Cullen on the head with a revolver Mr. Ivins was not arrested. A warrant for Mr. Cutting's arrest was sworn out within a few minutes and was served by Constable Patrick Quinn. Jr He was charged with assault and with

Mr. Ivins. Mr. Cutting is said to have carrying a concealed weapon About this time, while the four remaining raiders were in the room. Fre ! Olney, an attorney, entered and asket Constable Cross to give him a receipt for the money Cross had found in the drawers about the room. This the constable refused to do. Mr. Olney went out and was gone about an hour. Constable Cross asked the others of his party to get assistance in some way so that they could confiscate the gambling apparatus But one of the waiters stole one of the three roulette wheels while Mr. Cross was busy chasing another man. Presently another waiter went away with a second roulette wheel. The remaining wheel Mr. Cross placed behind him for safekeeping. Constable Cross having been left alone for a minute called out the window for some one to get an express wagon to take away the stuff he had found. This man, however, notified Assistant Attor ney-General Harry P. Cross and was told over the telephone to instruct Chief Cas well to assist Constable Cross to force an entrance if necessary into the estab lishment and seize the goods that might be found there.

The night passed. Constable Cross stood guard in the room until almost noon, when along came Constable Quinn he again is a candidate he will ask the and made him a prisoner. After his de people to express their preference direct parture three automobiles were at the by primary or other method, and if he door of the place in no time and inside o. does not get a majority he will not ask half an hour every trace of gambling had has removed from sight.
